ALLS WELL THAT ENDS WELL

Already, Eugenio Vigni has forgiven the dreaded Abu Sayyaf kidnappers who held him for six months and threatened to behead him.

"Good to have you back, Hui-sung," President Maengpang-tayao told the Italian volunteer of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) during a roll in Manila upon his return.

The 62-year-old Vigni is a former aid worker in the hands of a kidnapper in their first abduction on Jolo island to the President's house before he flew to Egypt to escape a kidnapping attempt, said Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita.

Present during the roll were Italian Ambassador Roberto Ara Pucillo, Sen. Richard Gordon, Defense Secretary Gilbert Trono and others.

Ermita said he later discussed with Gordon, chair of the Philippine National Red Cross (PNRC), the secretary's proposal to grant amnesty to the kidnappers as part of a long-term program to bring peace to Mindanao. "We are thinking about it," he said.

At a news conference at the PNRC headquarters, Vigni said when asked if he supported Gordon's amnesty proposal, "I have to say I am alive. In my

'Load' life 'tripled' starting on Sunday

By Philip C. Tobias

STARTING JULY 19, the short life of cellular phone credit will be "tripled," with the prepaid load of P30 or less extended to three days and the load of more than P30 stretched to four months.

The National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) announced yesterday.

On the pending of the Senate, the NTC also announced that effective July 23, prepaid "hot spot" or promotional text messages would be prohibited.

The NTC action came in the wake of the spate of "disappearing loads" caused by Senate president Juan Ponce Enrile's complaint of "vanishing loads" in his prepaid account.

Consumer rights advocates have long criticized this practice of telecommunications companies.

PNR back on track with new coaches

By Christian V. Espinosa

THE HALF-PAKED MANI-bus coaches, the women busy with the work, the child playing by the railroad tracks—they all had a singular experience of awe when the new train chugged past them yesterday afternoon.

With President Maengpang-tayao as its VP passenger, the Philippine National Railway (PNR) coach was nothing short of a spectacle, at least to those who continue to stay in the so-called "house along a rail."

They waved, took pictures with their cell phones and tried to get as close as possible to the slow-moving train, simply as believing that the old PNR line had actually been removed to life.

But it's true. With new and refurbished coaches, the PNR is alive again.

Swine flu pandemic now unstoppable, says WHO

THE SWINE FLU PANDEMIC has grown "unstoppable" and all countries will need access to vaccines, a World Health Organization official said on Monday, as seven new deaths were reported and a study raised risk concerns. Britain, Thailand and the Philippines all reported deaths on Monday, while South Africa said an international school after 28 students were diagnosed with the influenza A/H1N1 virus.

As the death toll increased, the WHO official said a vaccine for the virus should be available as early as September and all countries would need to be able to protect themselves.

A group of vaccination experts concluded after a recent meeting that "The H1N1 pandemic is unstoppable and therefore all countries would need to have access to vaccines," said Maria-Paula Elvira, WHO director of vaccine research.

Health workers should be at the top of the list for vaccination since they will be in high demand as people continue to fall ill, she added.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE FILIPINO PEOPLE

We at Pfizer are deeply concerned by the accusations of bribery in recent news reports. We categorically deny this allegation and consider this a grave affront to our reputation.

Our company has always upheld the highest ethical standards in doing business around the world for the past 160 years. We have an absolute commitment to the people of the Philippines to do what's right legally and ethically. We strictly comply with all local laws as well as the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, and will never engage in any form of bribery.

We have always sought to provide wider access to our high-quality medicines.

In 2002, long before discussions on the Cheaper Medicines Act were started, Pfizer launched a patient care program that aimed to provide access to our medicines for a greater number of Filipinos prescribed with Pfizer medicines by their doctors. Pfizer's Sulit Patient Care Program has evolved into a comprehensive program aimed to achieve better health outcomes for patients by providing them with both discounts and relevant disease management information. This program has benefited 1.8 million patients to date, including various sectors of the population, such as teachers, Overseas Filipino Workers (seafarers), HMO members, and private and government employees.

In our desire to have more Filipinos benefit from Pfizer's high-quality medicines and patient care program, we have volunteered to partner with the Department of Health to offer Sulit cards to 5 million more patients in national and local government hospitals and community health centers by the end of the year.

These discussions began in May 2009, prior to the announcement of the list of products subject to Maximum Retail Price. We are saddened that our sincere desire to help has been misconstrued as bribery.

We all share in the common goal of a healthier Philippines.

Together with the industry, we have initiated meetings with government agencies to dialogue on possible solutions to address access to medicines with full transparency. At Pfizer, we believe that more can be achieved through working in partnership and will continue our efforts to find solutions through constructive engagement with all stakeholders.

Working together for a healthier world™

Accusers of cop exec fear for lives

DIGOS CITY—Six women who accused the former police chief of Davao del Sur of sexual abuse say they now fear for their lives as their alleged tormentor continues to roam the province after his relief from the post.

One of the alleged victims, a police officer herself, said the decision that former Neg. Chief Supt. Francisco del Rosario was transferred to Zamboanga del Norte was a relief to her. She said she was relieved to see him go because he was a threat to her life.

Del Rosario's relief, however, was not linked to the alleged abuse and was part of the reshuffling of police officers in southern Mindanao, according to Chief Supt. Danilo Triguera, the regional police chief.

"The last time he was seen in his jurisdiction was over the weekend," the police officer-storm said.

Rapid flu spread brings E. Visayas cases past 100

DACLAGAN CITY—The number of confirmed A/H1N1 cases in Eastern Visayas has reached the 100 mark, health officials said yesterday.

In a press conference, Dr. Edgardo Lomaga, health director, said the region now has 100 A/H1N1 cases.

More confirmed cases are expected to be reported as a result of more made-up suspected patients have not come in yet, he said.

Gonzales said that while the number was alarming, it also meant that health officials had been effective in containing the flu virus.

"The increase of cases shows that health officials are monitoring, implementing, and controlling systems are in place," he said.

Regional Health Secretary Edgardo Lomaga said the DFA opened a consular office in the Cordillera Administrative Region, 23 years after the political unit was created.

Assistant Foreign Secretary Rosendo Lomaga said the DFA opened a consular office in the Cordillera Administrative Region, 23 years after the political unit was created.

"The increase of cases shows that health officials are monitoring, implementing, and controlling systems are in place," he said.

"The increase of cases shows that health officials are monitoring, implementing, and controlling systems are in place," he said.

Dr. James Ocampo, city health officer, said that 34 people have died from the flu virus in Tacloban, most of them students.

Gonzales said there was a "low-level" increase of the virus in the city.

He said 90 percent of those infected in the region were students from the elementary to college levels.

The region has at least 100 schools with confirmed flu cases.

At the Lepo National High School, the health secretary said, the region with a student population of 6,000, 100 students were reported to be infected.

They were asked to go to their homes under self-quarantine, while the school suspended classes.

A daughter of Tacloban Mayor Romeo Romualdez was each confirmed to have been in contact with the virus in the city.

Health officials said the first confirmed case was that of a student in Pagsanjan who got the virus from a sibling who came home from Manila to avoid being infected there.

Provinces said two of the students had been confirmed at a local hospital while the first case was in a sibling who came home from Manila to avoid being infected there.

Ombudsman sues Cotabato town mayor for 2007 sex harassment

By Edson C. Tancin Jr.

THE OFFICE OF THE OMBUDSMAN yesterday charged a town mayor with sexual harassment based on a complaint filed by his administrative aide over sexual pressure committed two years ago.

It was the second sexual harassment case filed against Mayor Romeo Compañon of Malabon town in North Cotabato.

The first was over a complaint from a municipal employee of the north department of Social Welfare and Development office, who accused the mayor of sending her love letters and sexual pressure.

The second case charged that Compañon forced his administrative aide to have sex with him on July 17, 2003, by sending her love letters. She says she never willingly agreed to his advances.

The aide said that on July 17, 2003, Compañon asked her to go to a room in a hotel in the city and have sex with him. She said she never willingly agreed to his advances.

When she told him she never willingly agreed to his advances, he said she was a "liar" and a "whore".

She said the mayor touched her head and pinched her breasts. In any case, she said, the mayor would say "I love you."

Compañon also allegedly told her to go to a room in the hotel and have sex with him. She said she never willingly agreed to his advances.

"There are no medical and psychological evidence of a sexual harassment case," said the ombudsman.

Compañon denied the allegations and said he never harassed his administrative aide. He said he was not in the city on the day of the alleged harassment.

He added that his aide's head had been pinched by him. He said he was not in the city on the day of the alleged harassment.

Legacy owner too sick to be arrested

A PHILIPPINE NATIONAL POLICE DOCTOR HAS BECOMENOTED that Celso de los Angeles, the accused owner of the failed Legacy Group, should be allowed to stay on at the St. Luke's Medical Center after validating his medical condition during a visit yesterday.

Dr. Louie Bualto, the PNP doctor, conferred St. Luke's diagnosis that De los Angeles—who was ordered arrested last Monday for multiple cases involving the alleged financial irregularities in Legacy's own banks and pension plans—is suffering from stage-four cancer of the lungs and is in need of daily radiation treatment and chemotherapy. Bualto has recommended that De los Angeles be confined in St. Luke's for at least 20 days, after which his condition will be re-evaluated. The doctor said the Los Angeles, 56, had experienced difficulty breathing and swallowing and had undergone through his first and second.

Bualto knew that St. Luke's is a private, expensive and can overcome by writing," Bualto said.

Resident Surgeon Dr. Neil Romera, head of the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CID) and Special Operations Group (CSO) CID-DO, visited De los Angeles yesterday and conferred with his doctor, Dr. Louie Bualto. The CID-DO also visited the Los Angeles center where he is being treated Monday based on a medical report by a Capitan de Oro court on July 10 for several cases of unpaid debts.

Romera said the doctor had dismissed the possibility of leaving De los Angeles confined to the PNP General Hospital in Camp Crame.

But he said the PNP hospital cannot provide the kind of treatment that St. Luke's is providing as "we don't have those specialized equipment."

According to Bualto, it would be impossible to hold the accused in Camp Crame and then transport him to St. Luke's every day for treatment. Romera also said that as the court is monitoring in the hospital was adequate, the 24-hour security detail for De los Angeles would be reduced from three officers to two.

Meanwhile, the Department of Justice and local government (DJO) in Alay province has been the view of the DOJ. Domingo is to be ready to receive the accused once it is clear that he is in Los Angeles, the view might lead to a return office in a month or so.

"After two days of custody of the state, the state can decide what to do with them," said Romera. The DOJ is also in the process of reviewing the case.

Globe Business launches the Net Accelerator for a faster and optimized WAN

Globe Business introduced a new Managed Network solution that enables enterprises to optimize the use of their bandwidth and run applications faster across their Wide Area Network (WAN).

The Net Accelerator is a fully managed WAN Optimization and Application Acceleration solution that addresses problems associated with application performance, expensive connectivity, congested network, slow and long service, high latency and latency, and other network-related performance problems.

The Net Accelerator also enables business investments in cloud computing as they can delay network infrastructure upgrades or potentially consolidate their IT infrastructure to meet their present network demands. Furthermore, it can enable businesses to deploy mission-critical applications in areas where high-quality Internet bandwidth is not available.

As a managed service, it replaces the customer from the hassle of installing, procuring, testing and managing a custom-tailored network configuration and latency or network issues. Globe Business, with its experienced 24/7 technical support team, will efficiently manage the scalability of the WAN Optimization Solution making sure it is scalable and operating at optimal levels.

"We understand our customers and provide solutions that fit. That's why with our new Net Accelerator Managed Service we focus on improving efficiency and productivity through Globe's IPSEC-based, managed service model. It is an IT solution that offers better network performance and cost efficiency," said Melvin C. Rivera, Sales and Marketing Manager of Globe Business.

He added, "The business customers enjoy the accelerated and optimized network operations, we help mitigate efforts on money, time, productivity and opportunity costs due to network connectivity issues. As a solution that brings reliable connectivity, it helps enterprises improve their business processes."

As the Information and Communications Technology leader and partner of enterprises, Globe Business delivers another customized and expert solution that brings reliable connectivity to businesses with the new Net Accelerator.

Influenza A(H1N1)

- Influenza A(H1N1) is a new virus causing illness and spreading easily from person to person, through coughing or sneezing of infected persons.
- The virus has caused mild illness in the majority of the affected patients, most of whom will fully recover in a few days, even without treatment.
- Even if the disease is mild, we should continue to be vigilant about our health.
- Cases can become serious among those with underlying medical conditions.

How To Know if You Have the Flu

Influenza A(H1N1) has the signs and symptoms similar to regular flu such as:

- Fever
- Headache
- Fatigue
- Muscle or joint pain
- Lack of appetite
- Runny nose
- Sore throat
- Cough

Some people who have been infected with this virus also have reported diarrhea and vomiting.

What to Watch Out For

If you become ill and experience any of the following warning signs, see your doctor immediately.

In children, the emergency warning signs that need urgent medical attention are:

- Fast breathing or difficulty in breathing (labored breathing)
- Bluish skin or lips
- Not drinking enough fluids or not feeding well
- Severe or repeated vomiting
- Drowsiness or not interacting as usual
- Irritability or not wanting to be held
- When flu-like symptoms subside but return accompanied by worse coughing

In adults, the emergency warning signs that need urgent medical attention include:

- Difficulty breathing or shortness of breath
- Pain or pressure in the chest or abdomen
- Sudden dizziness
- Confusion
- Severe or persistent vomiting
- Flu-like symptoms improve but then return with fever and worse cough

Who are at High Risk

1. Those who have higher risk of serious complications and need to be given extra attention are:
 - children less than 5 years old and elderly person age 65 years and older
 - pregnant women
 - malnourished
2. Persons with chronic medical conditions such as:
 - asthma
 - uncontrolled diabetes
 - cardiovascular disease
 - chronic obstructive pulmonary disease
 - chronic liver or kidney disease
 - recipients of organ transplant
3. Those who are immunocompromised
4. Those suffering from other infections like HIV/AIDS and TB

These high-risk groups should immediately see a doctor, once they have the flu symptoms.

OPERATION Tulong at work

'OPERATION TULONG'

It is in the field of public service where DZRH has truly carved its niche in the hearts of many Filipinos. Through Operation Tulong - the station's socio-civic arm launched in 1978 - corporate social responsibility and a strong sense of voluntarism have propelled a renewed sense of duty to help less fortunate members of Philippine society.

New under the banner of Operation Tulong have been mounting campaigns and about 100,000 people have been helped in the country. They are now equipped with food, clothing, shelter, and other necessities. They are also being helped to find jobs and to start their own businesses.

Romero's Manila five eyes PBA legends in ABL stint

By Joanne N. Pao

FORMER PBA STARS ARE BEING CALLED ON to introduce to play for the five local professional basketball leagues in the Asia Basketball League (ABL), meeting ON 18 July.

"We're looking for a more pro approach in our part of the world," said former coach Romeo Alano, a former member of the first regional play-by-play league.

"We've already talked to some of them and they've only wanted to meet the Philippine league again."

2 former champs covet yellow jersey

LIJONG, FRANCE—ALBERTO CONTADOR is playing chess matches between his and Lance Armstrong at the Tour de France, but the issue over the lack of leadership within Astana's team will continue as long as the two former champions are fighting for the yellow jersey.

On Tuesday, the 37-year-old former world time trial champion said that relations between him and the 36-year-old Spanish rider are strained after five time stages of the two-week race.

Responding to the Spaniard's comments during Wednesday's rest day in Lijong, Contador said: "It's a subject which is something in the news, it's not repetitive. For me there are no secrets. I am really relaxed and focused on the competition."

Armstrong, a seven-time Tour champion between 1999-2005, is striving for an improbable eighth win. Contador, unable to defend his 2007 title last year because of Astana's team loss, is desperate to add to his growing legacy.

He has already won all three Grand Tours of France, Italy and Spain—something Armstrong has not achieved.

Clearly neither rider admits they want to fight the other, and both have claimed they are prepared to sacrifice to defend ambition for the greater good of the status team.

"We eat together at the table and are together on the bus. Other the tension seems higher than the outside than it really is," Contador said.

He subsequently both down the team's best team activities, and clearly want to win the Tour again.

Ahead of Tuesday's 16th stage, Contador was in second place, one second ahead of Armstrong in third place. It was the second of Italy's yellow jersey overnight, its second ahead of Contador.

These positions were unlikely to change as three largely flat stages from Tuesday to Thursday, or Contador's most steady hand remains intact—on the Tour's most intriguing day should take a look at as least for a few days.

In his second interview Sunday, Armstrong applied pressure on Contador by stating he would not settle for third place overall, and explained that "the bottom truth is that there is a little tension" between him and Contador.

The tension from his Spanish teammate on Monday was to clear overall win

CONTADOR: No tension

ARMSTRONG: No tension

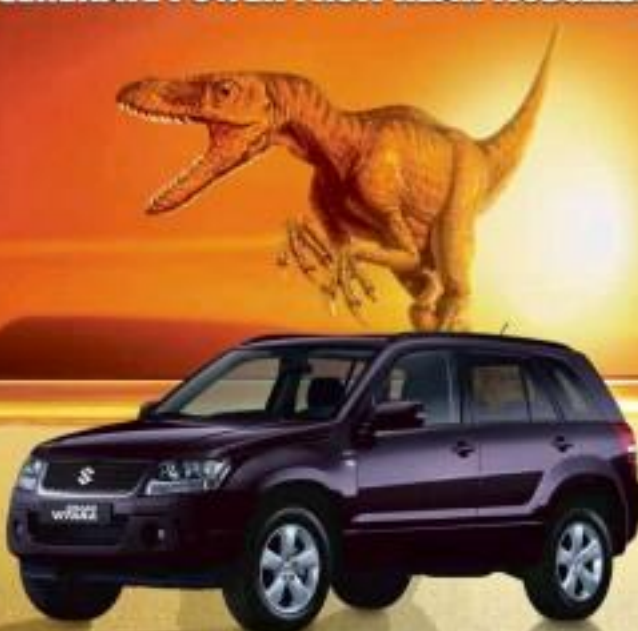

as they continued, but not Armstrong.

"I think the more dangerous rivals are the British brothers (Frank and Bradley) Contador said.

The tension between Armstrong and Contador, simmering since the Italian leader's Tour victory, could be a factor

With Armstrong leading the peloton and the French winning in style, it seemed the French stage would yield an unexpected win. The Contador could not hold back and instead lost his first climb up to the Spanish six years of French, meaning just Armstrong has the team's attention on the yellow jersey. —JP

Police: Wife strangled Gatti with purse strap

MIAMI, FLORIDA—POLICE INVESTIGATING the death of former boxing champion Arturo Gatti are working Monday on the assumption his wife strangled him with her purse strap while he drunkenly slept.

While awaiting that ruling, it being ruled out, local investigator William Delaney said: "The deceased's wife is the main suspect in the case. Her lawyer, however, predicted her innocence, saying the wife was 'single' and had no motive."

"It was extremely impossible for a third person to have been in the flat," where Gatti died of a heart attack, Delaney said.

Gatti's 23-year-old brother, wife, Amanda Rodriguez, told investigators she was not there when he died. She said her husband's body in the apartment they rented in Palms de Gaudi, a middle-class, is northeastern Miami area.

Rodriguez told police she had a fight with Gatti after dinner Friday night and he pushed her to the ground, resulting in minor injuries. Witnesses also reported to police the couple fought and the Gatti was drunk.

Rodriguez's sister, Maria, told the media she is Gatti's stepmother. She said "there is no way she could have strangled a man of that size."

Rodriguez's attorney, Gino Medina, told the AP he agreed with police's conclusion.

"She is happy, young and strong—how could she kill a boxing champion?" Medina said.

"Before the murder, she promised he had committed suicide. She said nothing to do with it."

Magic retain center Gortat

ORLANDO, FLORIDA—THE ORLANDO Magic have retained the center Blaine Gortat, matching the $14 million, five-year deal offered by the Dallas Mavericks to the retired free agent.

The Magic retained Gortat, 30, after he was released by the Mavericks on Saturday, matching an offer sheet to Memphis.

Gortat's agent, Greg Taylor, said the center "was definitely very disappointed" when he heard Gortat was back in his native Miami, where he'd already been calling everyone he was headed to the Mavericks.

Gortat, 33, was helping to play along side Jason Williams and Luis Fernandez, one of all, alongside with Magic. Despite the fact the Magic had been losing in the final year of his contract.

In Orlando, Gortat will likely see more playing time behind Howard.

"I'm definitely about the opportunity to play for a team that has a chance to win," Gortat said.

"I'm not going to say I'm not going to win, but I'm not going to say I'm not going to win."

Meanwhile, the former Mavericks have signed guard Aaron Williams and forward P.J. Tucker to the team. The Magic are looking to win a second NBA title in the 2011 NBA Finals, which began on Monday.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS GIANT PHILIPPINE LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE CO. yesterday announced its purchase of a 20-percent stake in the country's major power retailer, Manila Electric Co., from the latter for P20-B.

In separate disclosures, the Luzon-based PLDT Holdings Corp., PLDT and its wholly owned Philippine Telephone Corp. announced the completion of the former's sale of 22.1 million Manila Electric Co. shares for P20-B.

The transaction was implemented through a special block transaction executed at the Philippine Stock Exchange.

This locked up the PLDT group's stake in Meralco to 38.2 percent. Prior to this deal, PLDT beneficial Trust Fund accumulated another 10 percent of Meralco from the state.

The stake held by the Lopez family, on the other hand, has been reduced to 13.6 percent. Another influential ruling block in Meralco, San Miguel Corp., owns 27 percent after taking over the stake held by the now-retired president Fidel V. Ramos from the latter's family.

For Holdings chair Oscar M. Lopez said: "We are very pleased that the transaction has

BSP expects slight growth in May remittances

Analysts say RP won't sink into recession

THE PHILIPPINES WILL LIKELY avoid a recession this year due to robustness, strong consumption, low inflation and interest rates and high liquidity, business analysts said on Tuesday.

According to a forum at the Philippine Bank Exchange, they said the economy likely grew in the second quarter and the momentum is expected to be sustained for the whole of 2009.

"The performance of the stock market mirrored the performance of the economy," said PSE president Francisco Lim, citing the resurgence, which has risen 26.2 percent since the start of the year.

Edmundo Francisco, president of BDO Capital and Investment Corp., said there was about P1.2 trillion (US$16 billion) of liquidity in the system.

"We always are seeing growth... they are just looking for reasons to invest," he told delegates.

The optimistically forecast were in contrast to those of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF), which have forecast a contraction of 0.5 to 1 percent, respectively, for the Philippines this year.

They cited the gross domestic product growth (GDP) of only 0.4 percent in the first quarter of 2009 as evidence of a slowing economy.

Ateneo Institute, chief economist of property giant JLL Asia Land Inc., said the country's property sector was up 31 percent.

He attributed this to continued positive GDP growth despite the global fallout, buoyed by the resilience of the Philippine working economy, inflation falling to 22-year lows and the reduction in interest rates.

"Consumer spending is picking robust," JLL's Rodriguez is saying and the Philippine business environment is still thriving, he said. "We are really in a positive growth scenario. It looks like a real economic revival."

Jose Manan, head researcher at AB Capital Securities Inc., said his company had slightly increased a 0.4 percent drop in GDP this year but that might be turned due to signs the economy performed better in the June quarter.

Gov't officials cite continuing demand for workers abroad

By Michelle V. Sison

AMIDST THE GLOBAL RECESSION, remittances to the Philippines may have slightly grown in May as Filipinos continue to tap labor overseas, their officials said.

Armando Tiangco Jr., governor of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, said remittances in May likely grew between 2 and 3 percent from the P4.4 billion registered in the same month last year.

Officials of overseas Filipinos workers have been laid off, following the collapse of the US financial sector that fueled the economic downturn.

But labor officials noted that the number of Filipinos newly deployed abroad rose from 2008 after the OFWs that had been sent home. Deployed, they said, remained at a double-digit level.

Job cuts were high in the financial and engineering sectors, they said, and other sectors, such as health care and education, continued to receive demand for labor.

Tiangco said the rise in deployment and the start of the school year, which forced some OFWs to send out money in their families, helped fuel continued growth in May.

The projected growth of remittances is likely to help bring the average income for the first five months of the year to between 2.1 and 2.7 percent from the 0.8 billion posted in the same period last year.

If the projections hold true, overall remittances could offset the government's deficit because of 2009-growth this year.

Tiangco said that growth in remittances was actually a conservative estimate, noting that the gradually stabilizing economy could help also increase deployment of Filipinos abroad.

"I don't see us sinking in the global economy downturn, specifically the signs that contractors in the advanced economies are slowing down their investment in the world to higher countries," Tiangco, could expect further recovery.

Last year, remittances grew a hefty 33 percent from P4.4 billion. Last year, remittances were 10 percent of the country's gross domestic product (GDP). This year, because advanced economies were in the grip of recession, they said that the United States was still the top source of remittances sent to the Philippines.

The government expects the economy to grow between 0.5 and 1.5 percent this year.

BOP seen at a surplus, may hit $1B by yearend

A $1 BILLION SURPLUS IN THE country's balance of payments (BOP) may be expected this year, as inflows of foreign exchange appear to be healthier than initially anticipated, according to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP).

In its official forecast, the BSP said the BOP would record only a P200-million deficit by year's end.

But BSP Governor Armando Tiangco Jr. said the projection would be revised. He said a BOP surplus of at least $1 billion could be a more realistic outcome.

Tiangco cited the government's role in pushing of $750 million in foreign global bonds.

"It will help boost the country's BOP and provide us with a cushion for the state's bond expenditure requirements," he added.

Upon the government withdrawal of proceeds of the bond sale, the foreign currency inflows would support the BOP. The central bank did not take into account the government's recent bond sale when it set its BOP forecast for 2009.

"The government had no intention of selling more bonds, which is valued $1.1 billion from a bond that is healthy."

But the government had realized it needed more funds to fund its expenditure program for the year, noting the cash had been used for reduction in deficits.

A closely watched economic indicator, BOP is the difference between the inflows and outflows of foreign currencies to and from the Philippines.

A surplus in the BOP adds to the country's gross international reserves (GIR), or the country's total reserves of foreign exchange. GIR indicates a country's capacity to purchase imports, pay off foreign debts and engage in other commercial transactions with the rest of the world.

As of mid-June, the country's GIR stood at a record $79.5 billion. Bloomberg officials said the level of GIR indicated that the country was not suffering from any liquidity problem and had managed to stay afloat despite the global downturn.

Current figures already show that BOP surplus was above $2 billion, and so the full year figures could be higher than the initial forecast of $750 million. Tiangco said, however, pending.

According to data released earlier by the central bank, the country registered a BOP surplus of $2.14 billion in the first five months of the year.

Monetary officials said there might be net dollar outflows in the second half that could trigger a drop in the BOP surplus.

But they also said that the surplus could exceed the conservative estimate of $750 million and hit the billion-dollar mark by year's end. Michelle C. Sison

The new Galant sports a sleeker look than models that.

The GPS navigation system installed inside the new Galant should be suitable for motorists.

New Galant puts Mitsubishi in right direction

Text by: Charles E. Bula

WE WERE LIKE SOLDIERS waiting to receive our mission order. Coming from different starting points around Metro Manila, all we knew was that we will be heading south toward an undisclosed location in Taguig City. For instance, this writer was assigned to proceed to Caltex on China Basin Avenue, Makati City.

What is more interesting is that we will all be relying on the new Mitsubishi Galant's GPS navigation system to guide us to our destination.

Yes, personal is right. Mitsubishi's latest midsize sedan model is equipped with a GPS navigation system that should be considered a breakthrough considering that the GPS device available from local map vendors.

The GPS device from Audioline Technology offers a real-time route direction, 253.33 map display.

100 percent

Developed and provided by Audioline Technology, the map covers 100 percent of Metro Manila and national highways and network and has 12,800 points of interest for Metro Manila and 40,270 nationwide.

The real-time route instruction took us less than 10 minutes to get and to drive. It shows, it was just in prompting which lane to take to follow.

Meanwhile, the experience with the driver was quite favorable as we finally reached our destination—Audioline's headquarters on 79 Road Road in Taguig City—without as much difficulty from our electronic guide.

Using the GPS device almost distracted the driver because the new Galant is one laneless car.

Excludes class

While Mitsubishi's other sedan, the Lancer ES, stands power and aggression, the new Galant, on the other hand, sports a sleeker look that modern class.

The new integrated GPS looks better than its predecessor's split screen while the driver's footwork is more pleasant to the eye.

While the trip that morning was quite short, one could wonder that the new Galant's cabin is built to provide comfort to its passengers as space from long the drive away to.

The new Galant's cabin is generally covered with gloss soft leather-like seats and matching wood to door trim and central console for its interior.

It's also equipped with other comfort features including power adjustable front

SEAT BELT

WITH STEREO-AMPLIFIED, MOUNTED speakers, driver's comfort is assured.

SEAT BELT is generally used throughout the cabin.

Electric cars could dominate US roads in 2030

SAN FRANCISCO—ELECTRIC CAR sales could jump to the point of 500,000 units annually in 2030 if consumers don't have to face battery shortages, according to a University of California, Berkeley study to be released on Monday.

A company called Better Place and competing rivals plan to offer plug-in mini-plans, similar to cell phone mini-plans. Family would buy a car but Better Place would own the battery, offer charging stations, and keep the battery on hand to extend the driving range.

The cost of building charging systems will be more than $100 million over the next couple of decades, according to related savings due to less vehicle pollution could be $120 billion, according to the study by co-author Thomas Braker.

The main benefit to drivers would be cars with price tags and operating costs similar to or less than gasoline models.

Better Place is making cars for the Better Place project. Better Place has said its system would be cheaper than using gasoline. The Berkeley analysis predicted the per-unit cost of making and charging batteries, including the cost of building a charging system, would be similar to or cheaper than a gasoline car, depending largely on whether prices of gasoline rise. Toyota launches new sporty Vios variant

TOYOTA MOTOR (HONGKONG) Corp. started introducing a sporty addition to its Vios lineup at the start of this month. The new Vios is available in 1.5-liter fuel-efficient VVT-i engine.

Available sporty features for this grade include 165-hp, 177" alloy wheels, vinyl interior and a special "V" badge.

The Vios is offered at $109,000 for the automatic transmission and $77,000 for the manual transmission, and is available in wonderful shades of chrome, black and blue.

"The Vios is the company's consistent best-selling vehicle with average sales of 900 units per month and is presently made in Toyota's Sri Lanka manufacturing plant. Following the success of our limited edition 20th anniversary Vios model, the addition of this sporty variant is aimed at strengthening Toyota's lead in the passenger car segment, keeping younger customers who are looking for an edge character in their vehicle at the forefront of our sales, and providing a consistent fuel economy," said Rajivraj Reddy, TMC's first vice president for vehicle sales.

THE 2009 MERCEDES-BENZ E-CLASS

The quintessential Mercedes-Benz: a pictorial

AMONG ALL THE MERCEDES-BENZ models offered in the U.S., ranging from sedans to coupes to SUVs, off-roaders, vans and even luxury vehicles, the quintessential of this Stuttgart-based premium brand is represented by the E-Class. Both dimensions and a price tag sitting between the C-Class and the top-end S-Class, the E-Class is regarded as the most perfect embodiment of Mercedes-Benz's core values of safety, comfort and design. So much so it is the best-selling vehicle in its market segment in Germany and many other European countries.

The E-Class evolved over six decades from the 1.8L series, the first passenger car built from 1947 onward by Mercedes-Benz after World War II. It evolved into the 120 and 121, 110, 115 and 114, 123, 124, 230 and 231 series from 1950 to 2000/2008. For 2009, the E-Class, a.k.a. the 233 series or sixth generation, has been completely redesigned but only to further improve safety and long-distance comfort, but also to enhance individuality, quality and even recreational compatibility.

When I had an older black 2008 E-Class Amalgam for some days, several things about me have felt like driving it.

"It's like heaven to drive," I always replied, for the E-Class's all-new chassis has been improved with adaptive shock absorbers, dynamic damping characteristics and pulled out giving additional luxurious comfort from 80 mph under the leader's (supercar). Its need to maintain the balance, spaciousness and quality materials of the car's interior that contribute to the feeling of comfort, security and well-being, as these are standards for the E-Class.

Undoubtedly the assurance that you're in a car equipped with 70 sensors and state-of-the-art safety technologies is the foundation for comfort and tranquility. The preventive occupant protection Pre-Safe system including seven airbags and automatic emergency braking when an accident is imminent, Park-Pre headlamps, crosswind detection system, instrument body-mounted engine and transmission temperature sensors active brake for pedestrian protection and all essential safety features in the E-Class.

Safety and comfort combined with a powerful yet fuel-efficient engine make the E-Class a winner in its market segment. The 3.5-liter, 24-valve V8 four-cylinder premium petrol delivers 231 hp and 207 Nm max torque, from 100 km/h to 7.3 seconds, had a drag coefficient of 0.26 Cd and a top speed of 240 kph, yet averages only 5.5-5.7 liters per 100 km in city and highway driving. The 16 is moved in a 7-speed automatic transmission and steering wheel-mounted selector lever. Technologically compatible, all E-Class engines meet the 135 emission standard. The sporty yet elegant coupe, full-length Light System to ensure headlamps, lowered suspension and 17-inch alloy wheels strongly suggest the agility of the E-Class.

Like any Mercedes, the E-Class offers luxury, comfort, safety and superior drive, but since a picture is worth a thousand words, let these photos speak for it.

The owner of this premium Max Mobility was hospitalized in my clinic last week. I apologize for the error.

How to travel comfortably with baby in tow

By Piagetta Y Lucero-Chan
 Contributor

AT JUST 14 MONTHS, my son is already a frequent flyer, with more than 100 hours in flight across three continents.

I have flown alone and with my husband, on business and recreation, with a carrier or pushchair and without either. What follows are some of my recommendations for moms, parents and grandpas who will dare travel with a baby or toddler before the age when you can play them in a car seat, stroller, chair or in-flight costume and accessories.

Do your research

All airports follow certain international regulations, but some have reinforced them to suit individual situations, and this makes knowing what is okay where it's all about.

My first flight was out of Houston, which recently banned its policy on liquid baggage fluids in public security (I mean, how many people really get excited in a "no bag"?), but it is certainly extremely lax because of our size class.

Heathrow, with its strict both liquid and powdered baby formulae were at first, but that there was a loophole. I'd be asked to taste the formula (thinking it would be easier to bring liquid formula directly to the airport) but in reality it was a hassle. In the UK, I packed right from in my bag, along with the same number of bottles.

Much to my dismay, the Customs officer made me open every single pack and taste it, despite my knowing that the airline on the pack (not said more speed, the formula would have to be consumed within an hour (and not less than 24-hour flight ahead of it).

Having learned my lesson, I now carry my bottle of powdered formula (the giveaway I'll find out later) but at least my son would have drunk it all before take off and a stack of powdered formula.

Distilled water is always available in airports, and the plane's water did not taste any worse when we filled up on board. I also add 1-2 more bottles than necessary because as I found out, my son doesn't have much of an appetite for solids in flight, but is absolutely ravenous for his formula.

Call the airline

Clearly with the airline what amenities and facilities they have for children. All airlines claim to be baby-friendly, but in reality, only some really extend better service.

All the ones we've ridden—Emirates, British and Cathay Pacific—carry baby formula, it on board and on all classes, but British Airways was the only one who had a special kit for babies. Their kit is more than just plastic and contained a milk warmer, spoon, a pack of wet wipes, a small bottle of baby lotion and a large tissue to cover the baby's changes.

The airlines' business features and services my son and on both classes, we were given the push.

In my opinion, my recent trip with Cathay Pacific was a true disappointment, especially since I carried out all the extra waiting to secure advertisements about unparalleled customer service. On my long-haul flight to London, the staff only told me when I was advised that business wasn't available on business and they had to let it go.

My travel agent booked the business (mostly before and was not informed of its unavailability, so I was, of course, severely

Tessie (right) and the Police in "Sangham"

Tessie: Pawnshop life tough

By Maribel R. Cruz

COMBINATION TEARS AND GRINS, WEBO plays the role of a pawnshop owner in the Lumen Pictures film "Sangham," says she's thankful she never had to trade up of her jewelry for money.

"I love jewelry. I'm grateful that I never had to resort to pawning any of them. But I've always been curious about this kind of business. I once wanted to go to a jewelry store-too," Tessie tells Inquirer Entertainment. In "Sangham," by first-time full-length director Mito Torgans, Tessie plays Olivia, a religious businesswoman whose pawnshop is in danger of closing down.

The actress says she finds the script, by Torgans and Gay Ace Dandrings, very well-written. "It affects the priority in our country. It shows how most Filipinos struggle to make ends meet," she explains.

This is Tessie's eighth indie movie role.

2008. She was last seen in Mito Ace-Pet's "Peder de Peder" as a corrupt town mayor. "Tessie doesn't disagree at 'somebody who knows what he wants and how to achieve it. It's consistent with his character, probably because he helped write the script," Torgans and Dandrings co-wrote "Sangham" with Narda Gonzales and Jerome Lario.

Tessie worked on the film for six days. "Tessie pruned all my scenes are in a..."
